Pretty good. Liked the original Zuma for mindless entertainment. This one is more of the same.. One of the best games i have played. Started playing the game back in 1999 with the original AT.

Still in love with this game 2017.

To bad AT 2 was a blow, was really looking forward to it. Well maybe AT 3 will be once produced and be somewhat similar to the original game.. awesome graphics and beautiful music!. IT S GOOD

. Joined a public server. Sensitivity was way too high. Pressed escape to change sensitivity. Got killed. Escape menu stayed on screen but no cursor. Pressed escape. Cursor came on but escape menu disappeared and I couldn't aim or move. Got killed again a few times. Figured out how to solve this and finally could aim and move. Spotted a person. Aimed at his face and shot. Entire screen started shaking like my guy had a micro-stroke. Guy died. Figured out you can run and double-jump. Got stuck in geometry. Died. Got stuck in geometry a few more times. Pressed Alt + F4.

At its current state, the game is hilariously bad. I hope the devs find time to fix all the bugs and actually make this a decent experience.

Oh and don't even bother setting the details on something else than Fastest or you're gonna have a bad time.. THIS is the DLC you are looking for.

it expands the tree, so that you dont have to go one gun at a time, it does not UNlock every gun in the game, so you still have some goals and something to work twoards.

and its 1V10th the price of there "lifetime GUNS Dlc" which ive read does not include the various other models they make like animals and cars.

buy it.. not yet to play it but i hope developer bring big update for this

. I re-enacted the Bee Movie and I regret nothing.. Great game! I was surprised at how good it looks for how old it is.

STAY CLEAR!

no mouse support and from what i've seen on the forum they are too lazy too make it work.
their excuse is "our game is different". as if.
I wouldn't play this even if a was paid to do it

This developer goes on my stay-away-from list. You have to want to play the faction and/or the campaign for it. The base game already includes all of the units and creatures as can be found randomly as neutral spawns on the map. And I dont believe there are any new artifacts or spells. You only get access to actually playing the new faction units, and the heroes that have the new faction talent tree line that is unique the faction. It's pretty good, it's pretty fun. It's not overpowered, and it's not necessary. I got it on a sale. I would recommend it if you want to play the faction or the extra campaign.. This review has been updated - The game is still bad.

I can't recommend this, don't let the positive reviews sucker you in like it did me.

The game is very cryptic to start, way too cryptic to be any fun, along with the morphing heads and bodies which is hilariously stupid. The game didn't age well, that is very apparant.

So, you start with a lead pipe and the controls are an absolute MESS, be prepared to rebind every last control that there is in this game. Also, without a guide you are pretty lost. You have no idea what to do and you're kind of just plopped there. Oh, and the quick save function doesn't work, you must manually save unless you want to hear "ill kill those two ♥♥♥♥ers" about 80 times while trying to figure out what to do.

Also, it's worth mentioning that the lead pipe that the game starts you with (THAT IS UNHOLSTERED) scares the very first NPC away, hes technically the very first NPC you meet aside from "those two ♥♥♥♥ers", but he runs like a ♥♥♥♥♥ and your instict tells you to beat his♥♥♥♥♥ if you do this you lose out on the crowbar, so holster your weapon and don't you dare touch it until you speak to him and beat up the people right next to him, but BE CAREFUL, if you unholster your weapon too close to him he will just run away anyway because the games fun like that.

So I looked at a guide to just get started, and it tells me i need to get this radiator thing for this guy at a pawn shop that i didn't know about until after i consulted the guide (there is a tiny button the size of a dime you need to press to get in), I proceeded to get my quest from the broker at the pawn-o-matic and proceeded down an alley.

After this I encountered two guards and pceeded to start dying to them over and over, I took a quick look at the guide again and it told me to wait till the game on the radio gets exciting on the so they run over to it, and so I did - except they don't do what the guide says because one guard glitches and runs around the ramp to the radio twice in order to get to it and causes death immediately with his shot gun if he sees you.

So, anyway, I do this part, I get the radiator thing in order to get my pistol because the melee is crap in this game, I quick save, like an idiot, just because i forgot it doesn't function correctly and I immediately die upon walking out of the depot to the same two stupid guards because the guard was glitching over to the radio again. I went to reload my save and by accident started a new game because you can start a new game at any time, this is crazy to me because its on the exact same menu as load game. I tried to load after realizing this and it put me back at the "pawn o matic" before i did anything because my quick save didn't work. At this point I just quit out of frustration and how stupid it all is to progress.

To all wondering why you can't just go to the next level, well, I did that the first time, you end up in the sewers, they all have shotguns that can shoot you from africa, you don't have a gun if you didn't get it from level one and you just die over and over. It's best to start a new game if you just ran to the second level.

I know this story sounds ♥♥♥♥♥♥♥♥♥♥, and like a "oh hes exaggerating" story or "he's an idiot, hes not playing it right" story but no, this game is a steaming pile of dog crap. I will get downvoted for this because the nostalgia gets in the way, but no, this is crap. Plain and simple. not worth $5 when it was on sale and SURELY not worth the 10 they are asking. Into the garbage pile it goes along with classics like monday night combat and the like. Good riddance.. Great Hero's Beard is a fantastic pick-up for its current price of £1.69. I can strongly recommend this game to fans of incremental games (categorised as 'Clicker' by Steam).

I am extremely fond of this game, and I have spent the last couple of days eating toast and pork pies whilst saving princesses. I will keep a very close eye on this game, as its developers continue to do their job very well. I do however feel confused by it lending itself to the term 'Clicker' or 'Incremental', giving it a sort of stigma in the eyes of some gamers and yet doesn't fully lend itself to those categorisations. It falls short as a true incremental game due a lack of endless progression, I understand that what steam categorises it as, and what its developers are actually making are two different things.

There are a couple of problems I have with its current state, that being its lack of endless progress as I previously stated and it's limitations surrounding 'stat points' and 'skill points'. It also limits the amount of times you can 'prestige' or 'ascend' (60x currently) further limiting my potential enjoyment with this game. That being said, even with these limitations in place I still find myself thoroughly enjoying my time spent in this game.

In summary, I think it has flaws but with a great deal of potential and a solid foundation to build upon. I'm certain this game can become a staple in the market of incremental games across the internet given time.. pay2win ♥♥♥♥♥♥♥♥ game. this game gave me ptsd.
